German Education Must Be Recast in Democratic Mold

By BAUKHAGE Neces Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., | "Did you have any breakfast to Washington, D. C. WASHINGTON .- Whether we are going to have two worlds or one.

one of the battle grounds on which the leave will be decided is Germany, Lines for that battle are forming now between one of the most powerful forces for democracy, the American public school, and one of the most antidemocratic forces of old Germany, the Prussian educational system. When congress meets it must consider the report of the mission of educators who were sent to the American zone by the state and war departments to study education in Germany. They came back with a careful and detailed study, including a description of conditions and a set of recommendations which, if they can be carried out, will have a vital effect in building democracy in Germany.

Perhaps an educational system based on the American model may not be sufficient to democratize Germany but I think it is no exaggeration to state that without such a system, democracy never will be achieved in the Reich.

I had the privilege of attending a conference presided over by William Benton, assistant accretary of state in charge of public affairs, at which Chairman Zook and members of the educational mission were present I came away deeply impressed, not only with the factual data presented at was familiar with some of the datal-but also with the imporbby I suppose I'm lucky to get tance of the program as a means and eggs for breakfast, but I'm of determining whether democracy of determining whether democracy or totalitarianism will deminate western Europe and perhaps the

System Mixture of Master, Servant

We know how Germany's history, her political and social institutions have all tended to create a peculiar type of thinking which has resulted in a caste system with a strange mixture of super-ordination and sub-ordination on the part of the individual German, The superficial and erroneous explanation is that the German is half dominating and half service. There isn't space here to go into German psychology but there was one point in the educational mission's report which was emphasized by their chairman and echoed by Assistant Secretary of State Benton, which partially explains this phenomenon. It reveals silies.
perhaps the greatest single factor. that can block democratic evolution in Germany This factor, the mission says, "has cultivated attitudes of superiority in one small group and of inferiority in the majority of the members of German society, making possible the submission and lack of self determination upon which putheritarian leadership has

The bars go down on the path of democracy for the German child in the fourth grade of elementary school. It is here that the fortunate 10 per cent who are to be the 'auperiors' leave the unfortunate po per cent, for at this point—when the children are about 10 three who expect to attend the universities and prepare for a preferanceal career

This makes a furdamentally "undemceratic division of the educational

Until they are 10 years old little Fritz and Johann have studied and clayed together in something aptreatmating the remendealily of two American boys, though one's father owns the bank and the other's runs a telloring shop But when they leave the fourth grade, their ways part and each year from then on, the wall between them grows high-

Dr Zook's voice was filled with real emotion when he described one of the many experiences he had when the mission visited the German elementary schools. It was his practice to ask the fourth grade children. "What are you going to bet" And without the slightest hes listion they would answer: "fluicher, baker, elech-maker, robbler" or whatever it may have been, never dreaming that it could be anything else, because their way siresdy had been chosen for them. This revels tion, Dr Zock said, was at beart breaking to him as when again and ers. Dr. Wall maintains. The before they started skidding.

Again, four cut of five of the chill amount of money farmers owe their Rural bank loans also are going lings to buy manufactured goods now dren answered "no" to the question: ereditors is on the way up again up, according to Dr. Wall. Non-real becoming increasingly abundant.

Contrast the life of these children with the American children who spend eight years together in the grade schools, many of them four more in high school, where all compete on equal terms, where ability can be assayed, where ambition can be estimated.

School Plant Hit Hard by War

This is only one facet of the probem with which the educators who must guide German education will have to deal. There are a great many physical difficulties, too. In the first place, there is a deprih of buildings, of teachers, of equipment

Many of the school buildings are rubble. Many have been requisitioned for various uses by the military government. In the winter there is the question heat-this winter probably will be one of the worst-and this is one of the most difficult problems to overcome because of the shortage of coal in the American zone.

As to teachers, more than one half of the Germans were dismissed because of their participation in the Nazi setup.

There are few books. There is paper shoringe because there is no machinery to make paper. There is no machinery because there is no steel. There is no steel because there is no coal. And so the vicious circle continues, affecting the whole question of supply and equipment.

There are, on the other hand, some things on the credit side. For Instance, the fact that the Germans have an inborn respect for learning and after a generation behind the "fron curtain" they are literally starving for information concerning the rest of the world. I can testify to this from my own conversations with a number of the young people, as well as the older ones, who had had at least a glimmering of the world before Goeb-

It is generally admitted that the first two objectives of the occupation forces have been realized more fully in the American zone than anywhere else. I refer to dennzification and demilitarization. These are important but negative. On the posttive side, democratization lags. We know very little about what is happening in the Russian zone but a nation that has progressed as far in moulding the minds of its own people, undoubtedly is not neglecting its efforts in Germany. We know that despite the terrible conditions in Russia arrangements already have been made for students from the Russian occupied countries to take courses in the Russian univer-

The recommendations outfined in the mission's report include similar projects for the future, as well as various other steps extending beyond the schools themselves and operating through the parents and teachers organizations and other groups. There is no intention to superimpose upon the Germans any system against their will. So far there has been excellent correction and educational circles in Germany are enthusias-He about the steps already taken. They hope that trained educators will come to Germany; they would be only too glad to send their people to this country for Instruction, They may not know what democracy is but there is plenty of evidence that they want to find out.

Presumably the report as forwarded to the secretary of state will receive his approval, and congress will have the opportunity to pass upon the whole program but, as the report concludes: "The development of this program is not the responsitility of the government slone Equally, if not more, important is the intelligent backing of the American people in the reorientation of the German people We have committed outselves to a program in which education plays a critical role There must therefore be no turning back in our support of that program so vital to the enduring peace of the world."

LABOR:

New Demands

New contract demands by the auto, farm equipment and mine unions left Americans wondering it a new wave of strikes was in the offing just as production appeared to be getting into full swing. With increased output, consumers saw more goods at lower prices. Auto-Widesprend Interest centered in the CIO-United Auto Workers offensive against the Chrysler corporation for wage increases corresponding to the rise in the cost of living since the union was granted an 1814 cent an hour boost last Janunry.

In pressing its offensive against Chrysler in the hope of establishing a wage pattern for the entire industry, the UAW disclosed it would ask for a minimum increase of 16 cents an hour to take care of the 12% per cent rise in the cost of living since last January. A boost of 20 cents an hour will be demanded if the cost of living should soar 20 per cent or 33 cents if the rise reaches 25 per cent. Farm Equipment-In re-opening contract negotiations with International Harvester, the CIO-Farm Equipment Workers asked that union members "be allowed to share in the prosperity of the company and the country." Harvester spokesmen denied the allegation that the firm would treble its best prewar profits Besides billing for substantial pay increases, the FEW also will seek a guaranteed annual wage assuring a minimum of 40 hours com-pensation for each of 52 weeks.

Conl-Charging the government with violating the contract with the United Mine Workers under which the U. S. is operating the nation's soft coal pits, UMW Chieftain John L. Lewis colled for a new pact embodying revised wages and hours.

Secretary of the Interior Krug's attempt to defer the opening of negotiations met with Lewis' blunt assertion that failure to hold discussions would vold the contract,

CHAPTER I

Mark Darrell crouched beside his imber-cruiser, Nat Page, at the engine of the motor-boat, peering out through the storm.

Through the great clouds of spray that went sweeping past them, eyerything was alternately as black as pitch and suddenly illumined again by the one-two, one-two of the lighthouse beam, as it clove the night.

The foghorn, which had been intermittently sounding its dull note for the past hour, had ceased; evidently the fog had lifted, though that fact was not apparent to the two men in the boat, cutting her swath through mountainous seas that threatened each instant to capsize her.

The drenching rain showed no sign of lessening, and the howling of the wind had become an inferno as they approached the lighthouse point, a long ridge of land projecting from the black, rugged coastine of the northern St. Lawrence, The little boat, apparently heading straight for the rocks beneath the ighthouse, seemed doomed to swift

Nat Page turned and shouted in Mark's ear, "No hope of rounding the point. But there's the little cove among the rocks at the point. We'll make her."

"We'll make her," Mark shouted back.

And neither man believed it, for here, off the point, the seas were frightful. Huddled up in their drenched furs, the two watched the treacherous, black, shifting panorama of shore and rocks, while the boat, already growing water-logged, rolled crazily in the troughs, and barely seemed to surmount the towering crests above her.

It had been a foolish act to start across the St. Lawrence that treacherous noon in spring, when the ice had only lately gone out of the river, and the first ocean liners had but'a week before forged their way upstream to Montreal But those logs in the icebound St. Victor would be ready for running In a week or so, and that would mean a little more cash for the new enterprise. And Horace Broussac's curt note from Montreal, demanding that the sale of the mill and lumber rights be canceled, had disturbed Mark a good deal.

It was disturbing Mark even now, though their lives seemed a matter of seconds rather than of minutes. The thud of the breakers on the rocks was louder than the wind. Straight ahead, visible only when the one-two of the light gleamed, was the tall lighthouse tower, all about it the black implacable silence of the cliffs, underneath the rush and roar of the cross:currents about the point, the dash of the waves, the back-suction of the undertow, the blinding spray.

Mark gripped the side of the boat as a great ledge of rocks rose almost beside them. They had escaped that by a miracle of luck. At the wheel Nat Page was fighting with all his might to keep the little craft head-on, to save hor from being battered against the rocks like a swirling log in the St. Victor.

Profits in Pulpwood Interest Mark

With six years' experience working for a company on the secondgrowth logging lands higher up the St. Lawrence, with the increasing price of pulpwood. Mark had realfixed that the time had come to take toll of the huge, untapped forest resources further cast, a hundred miles beyond Tadoussae and the Saguenay, where summer tourists fish and play golf. With his little capital, and two backers who belleved in him, he had seen the profits to be made out of the timber lease on the Kinross Seignfory And there was something more to it than the profits. There was the sense of mastery in the taming of the great forests and harnessing of the streams, driving runways, building corduroys, sending the logs swirling down the rapids into the flume. It meant accomplishment, it meant life liself The lease of that waterfront section of the Kinross Seigntory had been in the market for three years. None of the big companies had been ready to negotiate. The fall previously, Mark had closed with Horace Broussac, the Quebec lawyer, acting on behalf of his ward, the widow of the late seigneur, who had been drowned at sea with the sealing fleet ave years before Broussac, smooth, suave, ingratiating, had struck Mark as the type of customer who required watching. But Mark had satisfied himself that the rights were indisputable, and had seen Madame Kinross' signature authorizing her guardlan, Horace Broussac, to make the lease on her behalf. She had been a widow five years and the was not yet twenty-one!

Mark had sensed an indescribable sleek, dripping slickers, were aphostility among the sullen habitants. proaching them, a coil of rope in They lived by fishing, and each their hands. Behind them, clothed spring they joined the sealing also in a slicker, a girl was stand-squadrons off Newfoundland. They ing. were not woodsmen, like the people of the upper St. Lawrence, probably resented the presence of an Amer-Ican, even though Mark could speak French with fair fluency.

The landlord of the tiny hotel, patronized only by traveling salesmen, had been dour and uncommunicative, a Frenchman of Scots ancestry, like so many of the people But Broussac had been with Mark, and Broussac had been effusive, conciliatory and evidently the one man whose word counted in the tiny settlement, where he had a summer home.

The cheap little milling outfit would serve as a start. Loggers, brought from higher up the river, at the runways before spring. Mark was satisfied with his purchase, still more so with the fine growth of heavy timber. For the first time in his life he was his own master.

It was Broussac's curt letter from Montreal that had decided Mark to take Nat Page to St. Victor at once, and look into the situation. There was no transportation in April, exshore. They should have reached the wharf before dark, except for the sudden storm Now there was about one chance in ten that they might make the little cove at the They'd never round that point.

"We'll make her!" Nat shouted once more. His voice was exultant, a defiant challenge to death swirl of white water half-enguifed them. The boat righted herself and sped on Another ledge of rocks, pnother, leaning up needletanged, out of the white water. Darkness. The eye, the double eye of the light above them-

Then, mirsculously, the little sandy beach among the rucks at the point. But they'd never make it. They were approaching it diagonally, and a ledge of rocks on either side shut off the direct approach, and the boat was being sucked sidewise into a vortex of boiling water.

A Miraculous Escape From Drowning

Nat's shout was cut off by the crash of the Little craft as the underlangs ripped the botton and of her. She sank like a stone and in an instant Mark and Not were fighting blindly in that frightful surge of seething water. And for some seconds Mark knew nothing except the tense, vivid joy of phys. ical combat with the tons of greenwhile water that hurled him forward, sucked him back, then raised him like a roller-quaster and sent him plunging forward.

His hands clutched gravel He drow in a deep breath and clung, while the undertow grasped him and buffeted him; then another surge swept him torward again. and, in the double light of the eye overhead, he saw Nat's figure doubled up on the shingle ahead of

On hands and knees he crawled forward, over the grooning shingle, still wave-swept, dated, feeling as if his whole body had been beaten into pulp. But Nat was on his feet now, and stoggering toward him. Ills hand grasped his. "They are all right, Madamel" the elderly man shouted to her. "Bring them up to the cottage immediately!"

She turned, and next moment

Mark and Nat were being assisted up a long gravel trail, then up two flights of concrete steps, to the plateau on which the lighthouse stood. Here were other structures too, presumably housing the stores, the dynamo and the apparatus for the foghorn, and opposite them was a long, single-story cottage, with a

"Bring them here, Andre; will question them," she said, Again Mark thought that odd.

She addressed Mark in French. "Monsleur, we have been watching your boat half the afternoon, and were afraid you would never make the landing. You owe your thanks cept by motor-boat from the south | to God," she said. "There is but one question. Is either of you the Monsieur Darrell, who was here last tallen

"It is he-this one!" cried old Andre suddenly

"I. am Mark Darrell, and this is Mr. Page," Mark replied. "You must be Madame Kinross, whose lands I have leased."

A growl like a bear's came from old Andre's throat. For a moment he looked as if he was about to hurl himself at Mark. Madeline Kinross' quiet, level tones restrained him.

"Be quiet, Andre!" she commandcannot go back until tomorrow. Put some more logs into the stove in ters. He was co-star with Vivien the spare room. And bring them Leigh in United Artists' "Caesar dry clothes. I. Messieurs, shall heat and Cleopatra," co-starred with you some soup and coffee "

She disappeared into the back of flung ozen the door of the room that occupied the other wing of the onestory house. It was damp and cold inside, but a flicker of fire come from a stove. Andre lit a candle and placed it on a table. He thrust two logs into the stove and turned, grinning malevolently at Dan and Not through his gray beard.

"It was the devil saved you from the sea," he growled "Temorrow you can go back to him." There were two cots in the room.

From a closet the old man pulled some clathes trousers, pullovers, mackinaws and sacks "It is because she told me to do so," he snarled. "We do not want you here!"

"Well, there's a nice, pleasant customer for you. Mark," grished Nat, as the old man stamped out of the room "I had a hunch folks weren't so friendly hereabouts when I looked over your timber last fall, but if they're all like him-"

Madame Kinross Is Also Unfriendly

Kathleen Norris Says:

Happiness Won by Hard Work-Not Luck

Bell Hyndirate - WHU Festures.

"Dress your part-not expensively, but in those slack and blouse effects that make a small woman of 32 look like a nice boy."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THEN I was 18 I married the boy every girl in our town wanted to marry," writes Catherine Van Orden from a small town near Buffalo. "He was 26, just back from college, rich and handsome. Girls envied me and I enjoyed it, as I picked my trousseau and practiced writing my new name. We had a beautiful wedding, 13 years ago. Now we have three children-Beverly, who is 10, Tom, 7, and Shirley, 4.

"For a few years Fred and I were idyllically happy: It was all Paradise. We traveled, we built a lovely house. Severe financial losses because of his father's bad judgment somewhat curtoiled our holldays. and the arrival of bables kept me much at home. Until six years ago, however, I always had a nurse as well as a cook, and although it meant pretty steady work at home for me, too, I knew I was among the lucky women of the world

When the war began, Fred instantly entered the navy, rising to the rank of commander before the war ended. My mother came to live with me, there were no longer zervants in the house, and my life became quieter and more domestic than ever. Then Fred came home, changed Ills letters had been all love and homesickness: he had no sooner returned than it became evident that he had lost interest in us entirely I don't say entirely, for in certain mouls he will question the children. laugh of them, perhaps bring them some little toy he has seen on the streets that for me he has only absent - minded politeness, bared looks, long silences. We do not quarrel, as we did when he was a spoiled young society favorite and I a spelled child. I wish we could quarrel now, at least that is living. tion it is as if he were not here.

"I arranged a quiet room for him at the top of the house to save him the children's racket. He occupies it slone He hardly listens to break fast table talk, and is rarely at home for dinner. "Of course you will think, 'anotheven when he is at home.

er woman. Perhaps there is one. These vampires who go about in society trying to break up homes like ours are plentiful enough. But I think it is rather a great wearlness. Fred needs new friends now, new audience, he needs escape. This little town seems dall and confining in him, and my mether's talk and mine shout the children and the table probably bores him terribly.

"that what can I do to win him back* He doesn't want to go places with me, doesn't want to entertain, lin't interested in old friends. He lives a life agart from us, and it is all the harder because my mother and I really do have to work hard to keep this big house and this family of six comfortable; it is always a struggle to keep abreast of the children's claims of school, clothes, meals, manners, health, schilles. Im't that my first job! I can't pack them all off to boarding schools, throw Mother out, buy extravagant elettes and go dancing with Fred sgain. On the other hand, I simply ean to I wan't drift so far away from him that we lose each other! He listens politely to my arguments,

IMPROVE YOURSELF

Men who went to war suffered much, and endured harrowing experiences. They came back changed. That has been said so often it would seem that everyone, particularly wives of veterans, would know it. They also have been told that most of these men will recover their prewar personalities if given time and sympathetic help.

Today's story is a little different. Catherine has been married for 13 years to a wealthy, handsome man. Everyone envied her, and for a few years they were "idyl-lically happy." They have 3 children, the eldest 10, the youngest 4. Fred, impelled by patriottsm, entered the navy and served as an officer, Meanwhile Catherine had to carry on the household as best she could, without servants. Her mother lived with her during the war.

Now that Fred has returned. he seems curiously detached and silent. He stays away many evenings, and seems bored with the town and with his old friends. Catherine wants to know how she can win him back and how to find nese interests for him.

shrugs, goes away. I am becoming maddened with nerves and doubts, do help me if you can!"

To this bewildered cry I can only any what I have said in this column before; as long as you are living Fred's life, Catherine, you will indeed be maddened with nerves and doubts. You are one human being, Fred is another. To make your life a mirror of his or a pale copy of his, to let him know that he has the power to render you completely miserable is to hurt yourself, destroy the very thing you are trying to accomplish, and, moreover, do him a grave injustice. Make Yourself Interesting.

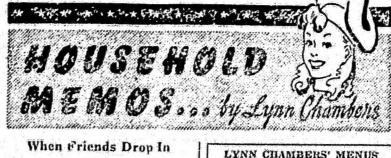

It isn't fair to Fred to burden his homecoming after the four terrible years that have demoralized the entire world and expect him to fall quietly Into line.

Leave Fred alone. Work on yourself. Moke your nervous, dissatisfied, unchanged self into something more thrilling. Try experiments in meals-out in the garden, or sandwiches taken to the shore. Start toble games with the children that will abserb them and you and Grandma leaving Fred to think that he has a mighty pretty, gay and self sufficient family, and a pretty pleasant home. Don't give parties, but invite an old friend or two to come in "unexpectedly" now and then; dress your part-not expensively, but in those slack and blouse effects that make a small woman of 32 look like a nice boy.

Never question him, criticize or complain Don't be Fred's parasite; be a person in your own right, You had your good times early; the spoiled little beauty who made the big match. Now grow up to yoursell in a more suber atmosphere, remembering what Lowell said so long ago: "earth has its price for what earth gives us." Happiness fought far, and wan, is better than the merely "lucky" brand every time.

This is a no-fall cake made by the new, mix-easy method. Raisin filling is tucked in between the layers and the cake is frosted with a tangy lemon frosting.

As weather gets cooler and we tend to stay indoors more, we're bound to be doing entertaining. No, it probably won't be anything fancy or fussy, but a homemaker is always on the lookout for easily prepared tidbits of deliclousness that will make the evening more pleasant. The efficient hostess will always see that there are a few cookies stored away in a tin or jar that the family can't reach. Let's call it an insurance cookle jar, if you please, for then you can always be sure of having something on hand to serve with fruit or beverage when friends drop in. Another idea that has taken many woman's fancy is a snack shelf. On this she keeps small plates and napkins, cups and glasses and a store of things handy to fix and good to eat. Cheese and cakes or biscuits, thin wafers, jams and jellies, pickles, olives and perhaps jars of delectable snacks are some suggestions you might use in filling a shell

As a starter, you'll like these cookie ideas:

Apple-Butter Cookles. (Makes 2 dozen)

Is cup shortening

14 cup buttermilk

I cup brown sugar, firmly packed I egg. beaten 14 (caspoon salt 14 teaspoon baking soda 3 cups sifted flour

ly cup apple butter or tart fam Granulated sugar Cream shortening and sugar until nuny. Add egg. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with buttermilk to the mixture. Chill until easy to handle. Roll to 14" thickness on lightly floured board. Cut with a round cutter. Put together 2 pairs with I traspoon of apple butter or jam. Press edges together with fork. Sprinkle with sugar. Place on greased sheets about 1. apart. Bake in a hot (400 degrees) oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Molasses Crisps.

(Makes I dozen) 16 cup melasses

if cup shortening 14 cups sifted flour t (caspeon sods la leaspoon ginger I leaspeon grated orange rind

Bring molasses and shortening to a boil Cool slightly; add remaining ingredients and mix well Chiliseveral hou s or overfloured beard to is thickness Cul in destred shapes and place on baking sheefs Bake in a moderately hot 1375 degreest oven for 8 minutes. When cool frost with powdered augar and water leing. Hefore leing has a chance to set, deenrate with red or green augar or tiny condies

Another good idea is to make enough cake that will last for entertaining several times. A good, fruity cake will keep well; in fact, will mellow with age.

Pound Pruli Cake. (Makes I pounds)

I cup blanched almonds, cut in steips If cup diced preserved cherries I cup diced, preserved orange

Pointers on Making Cakes

Sift flour into paper plates which can be used over and over again when making cakes. This will save washing dishes.

Set bowl on a towel when creaming and mixing ingredients as this keeps it from slipping and keeps the bowl steady grees) oven for 144 hours. With cake flour again available after its long absence, you can plan an all-out celebration for family or friends by making the kind of cake everyone has dreamed about for months, Even a beginner can make a tender, fine-textured cake because of this mix-easy recipe:

Remove eggs from refrigerator some time before using as they beet more carly.

Ribbon Cake. 2 cups sifted cake flour

2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder

1 teaspoon salt li cups sugar 15 cup shertening

i cup milk eggs, unbeaten

teaspoon vanilla

14 teaspoon cinnamon Leaspoon cloves 16 teaspoon nutmeg

Sift flour once; measure into sifter with baking powder, salt and sugar. Have shortening at room temperature; mix or stir just to soften. Sift dry ingredients; add milk and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes. Add eggs and vanilla and beat I minute longer

Line bottoms of 2 8-inch pans with waxed paper, then grease. Turn half of batter into 1 layer pan. To remaining batter add molasses and spices, mixing only enough to blend. Turn into other layer pan. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees) for 25 minutes. Spread raisin filling between layers and lemon leing on

If you are serving tex when enteriaining, make it delicious by bringing the water to the bolling point and then allowing the tex to sleep from three to five minutes.

'Voice of America' Idea

David Sarnoff announces plans for using the radio for world peace through the establishment of a "The Voice of America" program to be broadcast to all peoples everywhere. We understand it already has pro-gressed to the point where "Accord" will be spelled backwards and "Brotherly Love" sideways for 55 nations. The only point offering a problem at the minute is whether to give Russia more than five silver dollars if she answers the question, 'Is The Old Oaken Bucket a brok-

Those behind "The Voice of America" are hard at work on the features which radio believes to be the heart of mass appeal, those radio jingles. But up to the moment they have not found any quite silly enough to reach all nations. The only two accepted so far are: . World wide order! That's a lot! Love and kisses hit the spot! They're not really silly enough, but they may do for a start. Of course, on any international radio program from America we will have to work on the importance of the vitamin in climinating international distrust, and the advantages of the right "regulator" in creating better understandings. But there are certain dangers. Suppose the Amer-Ican program cures Germany of pink toothbrush but does nothing for Romania? What if we show India how to cure dandruff, but it still feels quarrelsome?

Couldn't more ill will, instead of less, develop? How will Russia feet if the quiz program jackpois are won by other countries, and will the Briffsh like it if Irem t gets the $12 for answering the question "Who wrote Alexander's Rag Time

A lot depends on the nature of the program used by "The Voice of America." Our idea would include:

(1) Let the kiddies solve it. (Six children between the ages of three and seven constitute an International tribunal and answer any question sent in by any nation.) (2) Telo-test. (Our secretary of state calls up the secretaries of state of other countries, hit or miss, from a phone book every morning and gives them a chance to win a Jackpot by giving the first name of Hildegarde, the night club performer.) (3) A "Mr. and Mrs Breakfast

Hour." (We might let Dorothy and Dick, or Tex and Jinx make a direct appeal to the Russian people for better understanding, with eggs on toast.) (4) International guest star hour. (Bessie Beatty can get Joe Stalin on her program, Mary Margaret
